So if you speak, on the microscopic axes I once depict:

Anyone can graph a simple story if he or she will only collect the data. The student brings a graph. I graph each one, then look at the shape of a given society's stories as if they were birds. I look at the shape the shape of these stories which can be drawn on graph paper that shows the fundamental ideas that feed the mind. The thesis has vanished, but I carry on abstractly in my head. One must not be too partial.
